OVERVIEW

As Director of Legal Resources at Marshall Dennehey, Julie oversees the firm's litigation and legal resources support team. She also works as an attorney on eDiscovery related matters.

Julie has over 14 years of experience in litigation. Starting out as a bankruptcy attorney before transitioning to construction litigation, Julie worked as a practicing attorney for six years before jumping into eDiscovery from a vendor's perspective at the end of 2009. She has conducted numerous CLEs, lunch & learns and participated in thought leadership and panel discussions throughout the US discussing substantive and ethical considerations impacting eDiscovery and technology and the law. Julie also taught at a local paralegal school, consulted with AMLAW 100/200 firms on software purchases, and worked as a Sr. Project Manager, bolstering her industry credence. Julie regularly advises internal teams on market trends and new technologies and in 2018, rejoined law firm life at Marshall Dennehey.
